CLOUDS.

A cloud upon the sky!
Flowers close their cups, the butterfly its wing.
The restless birds all cease at once to sing.
The slivering leaves foretell a shower is nigh:
Let the gray evening darken into night,
To-morrow's sun will shine more bright—
Such clouds as this pass by!

A cloud upon the brow!
A pale eye of the heart so free before,
A pulse of effort never known of yore,
A sudden change! Twixt yesterday and now.
If we would scan it, it eludes the light,
And yet our spirits own its subtle might—
Will this cloud pass, and how?

A cloud upon the heart!
What pleased of late, has lost its charm to-day;
The trust unshaken, seems misplaced and bold,
The kindly words sound distant, stiff and cold;
The form remains, the life has passed away.
Each shrouded spirit acts its former part,
Smile still meets smile, but heart is far from heart:
Will this cloud ever pass?

What wrought the clouds we mourn?
Was it some truth outspoken, love should hide?
Some want of reverence in a playful mood—
Some thought confided and not understood—
Some chill to feeling, or some shock to pride?
Enough they're risen—grief and tears are vain,
After the darkness and the bursts of rain,
Such clouds as these return!

Who discovered America?—The venerable scholar and archaeologist, Carl Christian Rafin, to whose researches America owes so much, died recently at Copenhagen, having fulfilled his three score and ten years. How much the Western Continent owes to this famous antiquarian is not generally known.

Historians and geographers almost without exception still accord to Columbus the original discovery of America, and probably nine out of ten readers suppose that the enterprising Genoese was the first civilized man who looked upon this continent. Yet as early as 700, philosophers had already obtained a glimpse of fortuitous discoveries by the Northmen across the narrow seas of Iceland and Greenland. Later this romantic speculation became crystallized into fact, but it remained for the faithful Rafin to examine carefully the thousands of Icelandic manuscripts of the ante-Columbian era, and to develop and arrange the details of the interesting history in his great work, "Antiquitates Americane." Accident first led the Northmen to America, as Columbus afterwards discovered the continent when he intended to do nothing of the sort. Naddod, a Scandinavian, attempting to reach the Faroe Isles, was driven to Iceland towards the ninth century. Before 900, the colonization was carried into Greenland. One hundred and twenty-five years went by before the fishermen drifted to Labrador, where Leif, son of Eric the Red, landed about the year A. D. 1000. He proceeded southward to latitude forty-one degrees, thirty minutes,—about as far as Connecticut. Here he discovered, finding the climate mild and the soil productive, with wild grapes growing along the shore, called the country "Vinland it Godel," or Good Vinland.

This tract probably extended from Boston to New York, and included the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. After a general settlement had been effected, Catholic priests were brought over from Greenland, and the people were induced to accept Christianity in the place of the worship of Odin and Woden. "Churches and convents arose in different parts (before the year 1121 (rivaling those of Iceland in piety and learning." Three boundary pillars were erected in Baffin's Bay, and the Runic inscriptions found thereon in 1825 were dated 1135. Before the year 1400 every vessel of these people had disappeared. What became of them is a matter of speculation—whether they were absorbed by the Esquimaux, or were exterminated by the Indians; but it can no longer be doubted that America was known to white men 400 years before Columbus was born.

A DISGUSTED ENGLISHMAN.—The San Francisco Dramatic Chronicle says that an Englishman who came out to this country with great expectations of making a fortune, entered into wild speculations in Washoe, was deced by sharp, and finally found himself out of funds. Then he, of course, as is natural with an Englishman, considered the whole country a vast swindle, a gigantic bill. To him all was barren. Going into a hotel near Virginia City, he sat down in moody silence, gazing vacantly at the bill of fare which the waiter handed to him. He had lost his appetite. "Can't find anything on the bill to suit you, sir?" asked the waiter. "No," said the Englishman, surily, "there's nothing to eat in this country." "Would you like a nice sage hen?" asked the waiter. "What is a sage hen?" said John Bull. "Bird," answered the waiter, "we shoot them out of the sage brush." The Englishman, looking the waiter sadly in the face, said: "A bird?" "Yes, sir." "A sage hen is a bird, eh? Then it has got wings?" "Yes, sir." "No, no," said the Englishman, shaking his head, sadly; "I don't want a sage hen. Do anything with wings that will stay in such a country."

EFFECTS OF MONGRELISM.

In 1833, Mexico swarmed with a peaceful, industrious, thriving, progressive and happy people. Her forests were being cleared away, her rich soil reduced to cultivation, her fields were teeming with abundant harvests, her cities of solid brick and stone, with their magnificent colleges, and splendid churches, sprang up as if by some magic power, from a thousand well selected sites, and the very bowels of the earth grew vocal with the voice of industry, as one hundred thousand hardy miners dragged forth the glittering treasures of silver and gold which for untold ages had slept within the dark embraces of her iron womb.

Such, we assert, is a very imperfect picture of what Mexico was forty-three years ago. Since that time less than half a century has rolled by and how changed the scene! Instead of the heavy stroke of the miner's pick, the ring of the mason's trowel and the merry song of the industrious plowman, we hear only the keen crack of the bandit's carbine, or the discordant notes of contending factions joined in deadly fight. Rich and once fruitful fields have become wild wastes, overgrown with briars, brambles and the thorny cactus; mines of exhaustless wealth, whence the busy hand of toil once drew forth its annual millions, are now buried beneath rocks and trees and the unfathomable rubbish of crumbling mountains; while once magnificent cities are in ruins, colleges have been converted into soldiers' barracks, and churches have become the hiding places of bats, owls and beasts of prey.

But what, we ask, has wrought this terrible change in the condition of our unfortunate neighbor? Did she change her form of religion? No. Did she change her system of education? No.

There was one thing, however, which unfortunately she did change, and it was this: She changed the scepter of government from the hand of the Caucasian to the hand of the Mongrel. Indians, negroes and mulattoes were placed upon the same level with the whites, and allowed an equal voice with them in ruling and selecting rulers for the people.

Political equality led to social equality, and social equality to intermarriages and amalgamations with all of their attendant evils, in the shape of political, social and moral depravity.

So long as they preserved their purity of blood, did they preserve also their purity of laws, manners and customs, but with pollution of the former came also the pollution of the latter.

True, we did not claim that there was no mixture of the Caucasian with the aboriginal and negro blood in Mexico until after the revolution that ended in 1823, but what we maintain is, that up to that time the native, the negro and the mixed races were kept mainly in a subordinate position.

What is true of Mexico is equally true to a greater or less degree of the other Spanish American settlements. Passing from the continent to the Islands of Hayti and Jamaica, we find like causes producing like results. In 1790 we find Hayti exporting 162,405,220 pounds of sugar; in fact supplying nearly the whole of Europe with that article. Her exports of cotton, indigo and coffee were proportionately large; but in 1849 we find that she exported not one pound of sugar, while her other exports had dwindled down to a mere cipher. The decline of Haytian industry was accompanied by a similar decline in everything like morality and religion. Now what was it that made the change? There is, there can be but one answer. It was the taking the reins of Government from the hands of white men, and transferring them to the hands of negroes and mongrels.

In 1793 this monstrous work was accomplished and forthwith the whole industrial, social, political and religious fabric of Hayti crumbled to pieces. At a still later period in Jamaica prevailed a different system of religion, similar causes produced similar results. If, however, we are mistaken in this, and if the decline of industry, morality and civilization in these islands was owing to some other cause than the practical workings of the negro equality doctrine, then we should be much gratified to learn what that cause was, as it would furnish us an argument of which we should certainly stand in great need in the event of our espousing the doctrine of universal equality and negro suffrage.—[Occidental.

THE REV. T. T. T. The Rev. Wm. Barnes was preaching in the suburbs of Philadelphia, and the house being crowded, a young lady sitting in the gallery, near the pulpit, end of the church, arose in the midst of the discourse and slowly made her way out. The preacher stopped, and fixed his eyes upon her until she came around to the head of the staircase opposite to him, when he called out to her: "Good night, daughter of the devil!" The young woman, with the utmost composure, turned around and replied: "Good night, father!"

"Vegetable pills!" exclaimed an old lady—"don't talk to me of such stuff! The best vegetable pills ever made is an apple dumpling, for destroying a gnawing in the stomach, there is nothing like it; it can always be relied on."

THE REBUKE.

He put his empty kettle on the table, and threw himself on the homely lounge. He was a laboring man, his face browned by exposure. All day long he had been out in the sun, upon the top of a house, slating the roof. Sometimes his head was giddy and his back weak, but he straightened himself with thoughts of home and the treasures there. And now, at the sound of his footstep, at the sound of his voice, dimples break over smooth red cheeks, and loving fingers play with his curls. He shuts his eyes to frame the picture in his heart—the picture of his wife getting supper—the picture of his prattling baby; he feels the cool of the evening; and all these things comfort him. Yet he is not quite grateful—not wholly; for to-day he saw another picture that made him envious: rich Sam Marlowe, riding out with his wife and child—a handsome pair—Sam, portly, contented and smiling; his wife, with a dainty color in her cheek, and rich garments folded about her.

"He and I were boys together," said the poor man to himself, bending to his work again; "and see how Providence has blessed him, for he began with almost nothing. Now he keeps a carriage, lives in a beautiful house, has married a fortune, and with plenty of leisure, can bring up his one boy just as I have longed to bring up my little Tom. I, by marrying young and poor, have bro't burdens upon Mary's shoulders that must be hard to bear. Five little ones, and only a day laborer yet!" and he sighed wearily.

All day the heavy heart never left him, and his fellow laborers wondered what had brought that shadow home with him—the phantom horse and rider, the envy and the care.

"My Mary is a handsome woman than his wife," he muttered, nursing his misery, "and yet she never knew rest. As for taking her out for a drive"—he ended the sentence with a bitter laugh.

Moments passed, during which the cloud grew thicker and heavier. A neighbor passing by, told of a strange disease that had lately appeared in their midst; the doctors called it diphtheria, she said, and it was a terrible and fatal sickness. Then the door shut and the voice faded away, but the something dreary did not pass from the man's heart.

Suddenly there was a sound of alarm in the bright kitchen.

"Harry, come here!"

He arose slowly, and passed through the door of a plain little parlor.

His wife held the baby in her arms; the other children were gathered anxiously about her, looking on.

"What can be the matter with him? He seemed well enough till now. But his lips are blue, and suddenly he ceased to play, and hear how he draws his breath! Harry, he is very sick; you must go for the doctor." Harry started at once; little Herbert was his idol—a most beautiful and attractive child, winning and loving—a very angel in the humble home. It was not long before the physician was in their midst. His first glance was startling, his second grave. Herbert was very ill; the terrible sickness was upon him in its most fearful form. All that night they ministered to him in his agony, for they felt that in his struggles the little frail flower would soon be broken from the stalk, though shielded by the tenderest care. And, alas! when morning broke in unbroken brightness, the sweet face of the babe was set towards it, but it saw no light; the spirit had gone to its upper home, and left the house desolate.

How long a time elapsed no one knew in that household, for the hours passed unheeded; but death came again and again, and Harry and his wife stood in their lone home desolate. The strong man was bowed to the earth with agony. For a time his reason was threatened. He accused God; he heaped curses on himself.

"I was envious of another," he cried, "and see how God has smitten me! Oh, give me back my children! Only give me back my children! Only give me the blessings of my eyes, the jewels of my heart, and I'll toil like a slave—not only through the burning hours of the day, but into the blackness and chill of midnight. I will live on a crust; I ask not for comforts—but give me my children, Lord, for I am bereft!"

His wife, in the midst of her own grief, tried to comfort him, but he would not listen to reason. He saw only through the crowding earth, black with damps and horribly alive with insect vitality, the beautiful brows of his five little children, hidden away from him forever and ever.

While this sorrow was still fresh upon him, came a letter postmarked England.—His wife opened it, and learned that an uncle of whom he had heard nothing for years, had died within a few months, and left her husband his heir.

Over the five graves of his little children, a treasure of gold was ready to be poured. Harry listened with a stony glance. What was wealth to him now? "Oh, for just one loving smile from the blue-eyed baby! Take the treasure, dear Lord; I don't want it now,—rather give me a few feet of earth beside my children. Heap up the gold, and put my little Betty beside it, living; only for one hour let me feel his dear lips pressed to mine, and for that choice I would barter every dollar. Oh, for poverty, blessed poverty, with my children!"

"I say, Harry, do you know that you are fast asleep in the draft?"

Bewildered, up into the thick bearded face of the speaker the laborer gazed.

"Well, haven't you a word of welcome for your brother? What do you see with those wild eyes of yours? Is the man crazy?"

For Harry flung himself upon his knees, and with strong cries thanked God again. Then he sprang up and wrung the hand of his sailor brother—ran past him, caught his wife and kissed her, and gathered his babies about him, held them all to his strong, loving heart, while great tears rolled down his cheeks. Then as his wife looked on wondering, frightened, he cried in a choking voice:

"I dreamed they were dead, Mary, all dead; and I thank God that it was only a dreadful dream. Never, never, shall I be envious again. Oh, Mary, to see them as they lie there!"—and again he covered their smiling lips with kisses, sobbing in his joy.

And that was the way the repining husband and father was led to give up envy and all uncharitableness. Truly, sometimes the Spirit doth come to instruct us in our dreams.

THE MOST ADROIT ROBBERY ON RECORD.
The astounding robberies of banks, expresses and individuals which have surprised us during the past few months, calls to mind a similar affair which occurred about twenty-five years ago, and is probably the shrewdest case of robbery on record. It was preceded by the famous forgeries of Col. Monroe Edwards—about $62,000—and which led to the duel between Tom Marshall and James Watson Webb, of the New York Courier and Enquirer, whereby the Col. got a ball in the leg, and quarters in the penitentiary—whereof the older of our readers will remember.

The robbery or forgery of which we speak was originated and prepared in the Bank of Louisiana, in New Orleans, but by whom was never positively known. The rogue was supposed to be a noted English burglar named Red, but this was never proved.

The Bank of Louisiana had a special plate of its own for its bank drafts, and specially made writing ink. The burglar first secured a free entrance to the bank by taking impressions of the locks, and then fitting keys to them. For four months, it is estimated that he entered the bank in the night at his leisure to inform himself of the routine of the bank's business—in the meantime practicing to imitate the hand, writing of the cashier.

When the fall business season approached, he took a schedule of the various amounts to the credit of the bank, in the hands of other banks and bankers, on the route to New York—cut neatly a supply of bank drafts from the rear of the draft-book, provided himself with the special paper and ink of the bank and proceeded in this wise: He wrote letters in the cashier's style, to certain banks and bankers, notifying them that Mr. D. had purchased drafts of them, of certain dates and amounts. He then wrote to the same parties in his own hand, notifying them in the same manner, inclosing half of each draft as a precaution against any mistake. He then started, collecting at several points as he went, his last being $22,000 on Jacob Little & Co., of New York—the whole amount being $66,000, and then disappeared. It was some weeks before the frauds were discovered, but the thief was then in England, probably long before, and safe from danger.

LOCAL ITEMS.

SCRIP.—We learn that the Treasurer is redeeming all County Warrants on the General Fund issued and registered prior to August 1, 1866.

HEARD FROM.—John K. Lovejoy has been appointed Justice of the Peace for Crystal Peak Township, Washoe county, Nevada. D. J. Glyd is one of the County Commissioners of that county.

FOR SALE.—As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns, Mr. J. Walker offers his Blacksmith Shop, Tools, Stock, Dwelling House, &c. for sale at a bargain.

TRANSFERRED.—The $1,000 Lassen co. warrant has been transferred to Mr. W. J. Bradford, in accordance with the law passed at the last session of the Legislature.

SPORT.—Mr. Kirby, of Beckworth Valley, informs us that the sportsmen in that vicinity are having fine sport. Game, such as deer, antelope, sage hens, &c., is plenty. Mr. K. went out one hour one day last week, and bagged 27 sage hens.

ASSESSMENT.—The Co. Assessor has completed the Assessment Roll of the county. The total amount of the assessment is not entered upon his work; but outside of Goodwin township, the assessment will be considerably less than it was last year.

REVENUE.—The total amount of revenue collected and paid in by the Tax Collector, less his commissions, for the month of July, was $3082.26. Five hundred and thirty-one F. M. Licenses were sold. The Bus Licenses collected, amounted to $35.60, Property tax $5.36, and Poll tax $92.70.

THE STAGES.—The Oroville Stage, from this time on, will make trips regularly every other day. This is the shortest and best route between Oroville and Indian Valley. Since the proprietor seems inclined to do the fair thing by the citizens of this section, we hope he will receive his share of the patronage of the traveling public.

LET.—The contract for building the whole of the Quincy and La Porte Wagon Road has been let by the Directors to John Conly & Co., of La Porte. The Road will be finished this fall. Some of the "croakers," who were positive the Road would never be built, will doubtless feel very bad when they learn this fact.

RACES.—See the Advertisement of four days' Races over the Quincy Course during the Fair week. It will doubtless be the best meeting we have had in the county for years. There will be three days' racing over the Summit Course, in September. We did not learn the day of the month on which the races would commence.

AWFUL RICH.—Yesterday, we were shown 100 ounces of gold taken from 60 pounds of rock from the French Ravine ledge near Rich Bar, East Branch. Mr. R. Irwin, who brought the dust out to send to the Mint, informs us that the rock was crushed in a hand mortar, and the above statement as to the number of pounds crushed and the amount realized, is correct. The following are the fortunate owners of the ledge: R. Irwin, Andy Warner, H. Kopp, S. Carr, J. W. Snyder, F. Shultz, A. Ramon and J. Martin.

WILL MEET.—The Board of Equalization are required to meet on Monday next, and to continue in session from time to time until the business of equalization presented to them is disposed of; provided, however, they shall not sit after the first Monday in September. The Board is such a partisan one, that they will not probably give any notice of their meeting in this paper, but we will keep our subscribers posted on all legal notices, action of the Board, &c. A pretty set of officers they are, who, to gratify their party prejudices, refuse to publish notices in their paper, but we will keep our subscribers posted on all legal notices, action of the Board, &c. A pretty set of officers they are, who, to gratify their party prejudices, refuse to publish notices in their paper, but we will keep our subscribers posted on all legal notices, action of the Board, &c.

INDEBTEDNESS.—According to the Treasurer's Report for the quarter ending June 6th, 1866, the total indebtedness of the county at that date amounted to the sum of $518,86. The indebtedness of the county was nearly doubled during the last quarter, and from appearances, if all of the members of the present Board of Supervisors were kept in office a few months longer, the Co. would be $40,000 in debt. The property taxes which will be collected this fall, will probably be sufficient to pay all debts of the county which will be contracted up to November next; but after that time, if the Supervisors continue in their present course, the debt will increase so that by the 1st of July next the indebtedness will not be less than $40,000. Will the tax payers allow such a course to be pursued? We think not.

THE DECISION.—Judge Hogan's decision in the case of the Trial Jurors who were impeached to try the case of the People vs. McVay, has caused considerable excitement among a certain few. We do not pretend to know, as they do, whether the decision was correct or not; but we do know that the point in question was not raised by the attorneys at the session of the Court in May. Then he decided that it was not necessary for a citizen to be registered in the great register, to be qualified to sit as a juror, prior to 1867. In his decision on Monday, he held the same opinion, but decided that it was necessary that a citizen's name should be enrolled on the precinct poll book before he could sit as a juror. See Registry Law, section 29.

ACCIDENT.—A sad accident occurred at Nelson Point, on Tuesday last, in the river claim of White and Richards. The following are the particulars as near as we can learn: Mr. Henry White, while attending to the hoisting gear used in the claim for removing gravel, endeavored to make the rope wind more closely on the drum. In pressing against it, his hand slipped over the rope and caught between the coils, holding him with an iron grasp. He turned with the wheel, and his body was in such a position that each revolution of the shaft bound him faster to it—the rope first winding over his hands, then his arms and his breast, and finally over his face, crushing both jaws into a shapeless mass, and the bones of his jaw cutting his tongue very badly. His brother, almost paralyzed with terror, finally unshipped the drum, and reversed its motion. A loaded car midway on an incline being attached to the rope, turned the shaft with such a velocity and force that his feet, striking the platform underneath at each turn of the drum, were badly bruised. He was removed to his cabin, and a messenger immediately dispatched to this place for a surgeon. Dr. Cate pronounced the case a very critical one.

WILL BUY.—A. P. Moore will pay the highest price for County Warrants. See Ad.

SUPERVISORS.—J. T. Taylor Esq., of Indian Valley announces himself as an Independent Candidate for the office of Supervisor of Dist. No. 2. Mr. Taylor is an old resident of this county, is well and favorably known to all of our citizens and if elected will make a good Supervisor. He will not allow all of his actions as Supervisor to be governed by self interest.

IMPROVEMENTS.—J. E. Edwards, Proprietor of the Plumas House, intends enlarging his new Hotel by building a front on the same. He has several men now at work upon it, and will have it finished before the time for holding the Agricultural Society's Fair. Edwards has the reputation of keeping one of the best hotels in the mountains, and as a matter of course, parties who stop with him once never go anywhere else when they come to town.

THE REASON.—We are of the opinion that the reason, and the only reason, why the Supervisors failed to establish precincts and appoint officers of election, under the requirements of the Registry law, at their meeting in July, which was called for that express purpose, was that the proceedings might be published in Mr. Gear's paper, and not in the Union. We exonerate Mr. Gilbert, of the 1st district, from any complicity in the matter, for we know that he wished to proceed with the business as by law required.

NEXT WEEK.—The action of each individual member of the Board of Supervisors of this Co. will be fully ventilated in our next issue. Their course, during their term of office, needs a little criticism. We have no room in this issue to do them justice. The tax payers of this county shall know what kind of material their Board of Supervisors is composed of. A large number of local items and some of our advertisements are crowded out this week.

AN OUTRAGE.—Had the Supervisors done their duty in establishing precincts and appointing officers, under the requirements of the Registry law, at their meeting in July last, they would have saved the county several hundreds of dollars useless expense, the citizens would have had an opportunity to enroll their names, and a Jury could have been impaneled. So much for not having faithful officers. Tax payers can congratulate themselves that the term of one of the Supervisors expires before the November meeting, and there is no danger of his being a candidate again.

SCHOOLS &c.

ED. UNION.—Allow me for a moment to call your attention to a subject that I have looked for in vain in your valuable and influential paper, that of Public Schools in this place, and which is being so shamefully and disgracefully neglected at the present time. As nearly as I can learn, there are here and in the vicinity of this seat of government of the great and wealthy county of Plumas, some twenty or thirty children spending their time in idleness and growing up in ignorance, entirely destitute of the advantages of a school; and with shame be it said, there are no signs in the times, or in the QUINCY UNION, that it will be any better. Now, Mr. Editor, could you not be persuaded to take this subject in hand, and present it to the public in its proper light, with all that unyielding perseverance that characterizes your articles on Advertising? If so, you might be of great service. Indeed, I am fully convinced that the public will be much more benefited and pleased with articles on this subject, than they are with those in which your columns abound on Advertising, wherein you talk so much turkey to yourself that the dear public question your sincerity. Moral: As a general thing, I mind my own concerns, and if people do not see fit to patronize me in my business, I always thought it was on the principle that the country was free, and let them pass unblackguarded. Yours,

C. LEE.

We assure our friend Lee that we entirely agree with him in regard to the culpable indifference—to characterize it by no harsher name—which is generally manifested by the citizens of this locality upon the subject of a public school here, and have often thought of referring to it; but have delayed it from time to time in the hope that some one more immediately interested than we are—some one who has children—would take the matter in hand and press it home upon the consideration of parents. There is no one, we are well persuaded, who feels a deeper interest in this important question than the gentleman who has given us a slight but perhaps not unmerited castigation in the above for our sins of omission in this respect, and no one better qualified than he to do the subject justice. If, therefore, he will furnish us with a series of articles in relation thereto, he will place not only us but all the parents of children under obligation to him.

From the conclusion of our friend's communication, we infer that he surmised an extract published in our last issue had reference to him. We can assure him that there was no such intention, and the very fact that it was an extract should have prevented such an unwarrantable supposition. We fear our neighbor listens rather too readily to the insidious suggestions of some professed friends who are inimical to us, and who would be well pleased to produce ill feelings where none but the most kindly ones should exist.

A SENSATION STORY. BY A VEGETARIAN.—He had done the deed! But little did he guess that the eye of an intelligent potato in the next field was upon him. The potato poured the dreadful story into the ear of the corn, which let out the secret in its talk, and though I am bound to add that the corn was cut after thus betraying confidence, the story got wild, and the cucumber was in a most distressed frame of mind, in consequence. The culprit was overtaken by justice and several scarlet runners, and taken before a justice of the peace. The case was investigated to the very roots, and the potato was, of course, principal witness for the prosecution. Wouldst know, O reader, the wretched man's guilt? He had shed the blood of a turnip, little expecting it would ever turn up in evidence against him. He was executed, of course, the mode of execution decapitation, in order to sever the carrot-ed artery.

Summons.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA. COUNTY OF PLUMAS.

In the District Court of the Second Judicial District.

FELICIT CLARENT FRASER Plaintiff, vs ZEPHRIN FRASER Defendant.

Action brought in the District Court of the 2d Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Plumas, and the complaint filed in said county of Plumas, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court:

The People of the State of California send Greeting to ZEPHRIN FRASER, Def't:

YOU ARE HEREBY REQUIRED TO APPEAR

in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Plumas, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days, (exclusive of the day of service,) after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this county; or if served out of this county, but in this District, within twenty days, otherwise within forty days—on judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said Complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree of this Court, dissolving the matrimonial ties that unite you and plaintiff, and relieve her from all mutual obligation to you forever, and to restore her to all the rights of an unmarried woman.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said Plaintiff will take default and apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in said complaint, and such other and further relief as the Court may think proper.

Given under my hand and seal of the District Court of the 2d Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Plumas, this 14th day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

JOHN D. OVERTON, Clerk.

Summons.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA. COUNTY OF PLUMAS.

Justice's Court, Indian Township.

The People of the State of California, to WM. M. CANNON, and FORGAY, Greeting:

The Quincy Union.

A PRETTY THOUGHT.

The night is mother of the day,
The winter of the spring;
And ever upon old decay,
The greenest mosses cling.
Behind the cloud the starlight licks,
Through showers the sunbeams fall;
For God, who loveth all his works,
Has left his hope with all.

A FUSKY DOG STORY.—When the war in Italy commenced, the Zouaves embarked for Genoa; but as they were going on board the ship, they saw a formal order forbidding the entrance of all dogs upon the vessel. As they were very much attached to their dogs, they were stricken with grief. It was not easy to deceive the sharp look-out kept by the superintendent, for every soldier that advanced along the narrow gangway one by one as their names were called. Necessity is the mother of invention. The drummers unscrewed their drums, and the best dogs of the regiment were concealed in the drums, which were screwed up again. When regiments embark, no music is played; but on this occasion, the Colonel determined that there should be music. He ordered the drummers and dogs to take the head of the column and play a lively tune. The faces of the drummers—every one of whom had a dog in his drum—may be conceived! The trumpets all sounded; the drums were all silent. The Colonel got angry, and bawled to know why the drums did not beat. There was but one thing to do, and that was to beat. The moment the drums began to beat, innumerable dogs began to howl and to bay, to the astonishment of everybody but the Zouaves. Everybody looked right, left, backward, forward—no sign of a dog anywhere; and yet, the more the drummers beat, the more the dogs howled. At last a spaniel fell out of the drum, rolled over on the ground, got up and took to his heels, howling louder than ever. Roars of laughter greeted this explanation of the mysterious howls. The intendent ordered the drummers to advance on board, one by one, and to roll the drum as he came. If a barking was heard, the drum was unscrewed, and the dog put ashore. Only one dog got on board; this was Touton, who kept quiet through all the rolling. It need not be said the 3d Zouaves adore Touton. He made his entrance into Paris at their head, a short time since.

HOW TO AVOID THE CHOLERA.—The New York Saturday Press gives twenty directions on this point to its readers. We select a majority of them:

Endeavor if possible to keep a clear conscience, and two or three clean shirts.

Whenever you have nothing else to do, take a bath.

Work eight hours a day, and more if you like it.

Rise with the lark, but avoid larks in the evening.

Be above ground in your dwellings, and above board in your dealings.

Love your neighbors as yourself, but don't have too many of them in the same house with you.

Eat when you are hungry, drink when you are thirsty, and sleep when you are sleepy; but be careful what you eat, what you drink, and where you sleep.

Avoid public conveyances, if you are driven to the extremity of using your legs and walking two or three miles a day.

Avoid long dresses (this to the women) and leave the sweeping of the streets to the city contractors.

Tell the doctors that "whenever they come within a mile of your house, they are welcome to stay there all night."

Keep clear of the Penians.

Don't get scared before you are hurt, nor even then.

Get your life insured.

Make your will.

FACTS WORTH REMEMBERING.—"Cosme," in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post, gives the following:

It is worth while for all farmers everywhere to remember that thorough culture is better than three mortgages on their farm.

That an offensive war against weeds is five times less expensive than a defensive one.

That good fences always pay better than lawsuits with neighbors.

That hay is a good deal cheaper made in summer, than purchased in the winter.

That a horse who lays his ears back, and looks lightning when any one approaches him, is vicious. Don't buy him.

That scurrying the feed of fattening hogs, is a waste of grain.

That over-fed fowls won't lay eggs.

That educating children is money lent at a hundred per cent.

That one evening spent at home in study is more profitable than ten lounging about country taverns.

That cows should always be milked regularly and clean.

That it is the duty of every man to take some good, reliable, entertaining paper, and to pay for it promptly—of course.

MODERATELY WARM.—Advices from Williams' Fork, Arizona Territory, say that the weather has been a little warm, but that recently it has become considerably cooler and comparatively pleasant, the thermometer now standing at only 120 degrees in the shade.

AN editor, describing the effects of a squall upon a canal boat, says: "When the gale was at its highest point, the unfortunate craft heeled to the larboard, and the Captain and another cask of whisky rolled overboard."

A SURGICAL journal speaks of a man who lived five years with a ball in his head. Job Squires says he has known ladies to live twice as long with nothing but balls in their heads.
